If you are caught in a custody fight or you anticipate a fight over the children, this class will provide you with the tools and strategies to reduce the fight to a minimum. Classes are designed to teach you how to protect yourself and the children from the ravages that “breakup conflict” brings. The goal is to get you in and out of the court system quickly. An 80 page guidebook is included.

SOME OF THE COMMON ELEMENTS FOUND IN HIGH CONFLICT CASES:

- Frequent court litigation or disputes over minor or major child sharing issues;
- Physical violence, intimidation, stalking or allegations of abuse;
- Verbal or nonverbal aggression, abuse, harassment or threats;
- Continuous and chronic co-parenting difficulties, even over minor issues;
- One or both parents are unable or unwilling to protect the children from the conflict;
- One or both parents encourage the children to side with them;
- One or both parents are unable or unwilling to separate the children’s needs from their own.
- One or both parents are unable or unwilling to move away from conflict to build a new life;
- One or both parents refuses to share the children with the other parent;
- One or both parents may have been represented by several attorneys during the history of the case, frequently blaming the system for their failures;
- The case has earned a negative reputation with professionals involved with the court system.
